AIR QUALITY

Due to the bushfires in the region, the air quality and visibility has recently been very poor to hazardous in our region.

People sensitive to smoke should avoid outdoor physical activities as much as possible, stay indoors and shut the windows.

That includes people with lung disease, children, older adults and pregnant women.

Everyone should consider significantly cutting back on outdoor physical activities while the smoke remains in the area.

Further information about the air quality and coping with bushfire smoke is available from the NSW Health Website.

With our thoughts going out to all those affected by the bushfires around us, Federation Council wishes to advise the following Council coordinated assistance is available to genuine fire affected evacuees.
