By acknowledging this important day, we can take action to remove barriers for the 4.4 million Australians with disability and contribute to positive change in our local community.

Statistics show that around one in six people have a disability, with not all disability the same, including many disabilities being invisible.

By joining the conversation this IDPwD and listening to the stories and lived experiences of people with disability, we can challenge our own perceptions about disability, break down barriers and help make positive changes in the community. Find out more from Council's website.
